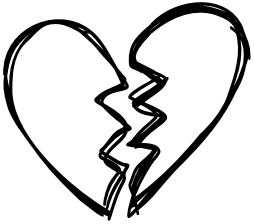
Healthy Relationships

Healthy Relationships vs. Unhealthy Relationships - Happy and unhappy relationships in teen dating can have a significant impact on your emotional well-being, self-esteem, and overall development.

Teen Dating Violence

Teen dating violence represents a variety of violent behaviors experienced by preteens, adolescents, and young adults within the boundaries of a romantic or dating relationship, past or current. These behaviors can involve any kind of abuse, including: Financial abuse, verbal/emotional abuse, physical abuse, sexual abuse, and social abuse.



CORA
COMMUNITY OVERCOMING RELATIONSHIP ABUSE

Educating & Empowering Youth

Our goal is to educate young people about the characteristics of unhealthy and abusive relationships and empower them to talk to a trusted adult if they are questioning aspects of their relationship or need help.

By promoting awareness, sharing warning signs, and encouraging individuals to create healthy personal boundaries, we take a step towards preventing and stopping the cycle of abuse.

Learn more about CORA!

Need support? Call CORA's 24/7 Hotline at 800.300.1080.

www.corasupport.org

CORA
COMMUNITY OVERCOMING RELATIONSHIP ABUSE